Re: We appreciate your work.

eFueling Technologies and Regal Research have successfully been working together for four years. We were drawn to Regal in 2001 after meeting a Regal sales representative months before we were set to launch the most ambitious product in our history, which turned out to be the most cutting edge product released that year in our industry. With the help of Regal's expert staff we were able to finalize our sheet metal design, setup the production line, and ship over 200 units all within a matter of months. Regal Research was a large part of our success that year. Today, 90 percent of our product line is manufactured, assembled, and shipped to our customers from Regal Research, which we believe is a testament to Regal's versatility and attention to their customers needs and we expect to continue our relationship as our company continues to grow.
