Re: Thank you very much!

Redrock Microsystems came to Regal Research as a start-up company with the goal of manufacturing our dream. Our dream is to build quality cinema accessories, for a fraction of the cost of what the market offers today, with a catch; to manufacture the entire product line turn-key. With our first product we utilized just about every service Regal offers including design engineering, metal fabrication, product specification and purchasing, electronic assembly, and shipping and handling. Once the product began to ship, emails started streaming in from our customers about the quality and workmanship of our product. We owe a large part of our success to Regal Research. We plan to release many more products with Regal's help and we feel confident that our company will continue to benefit from the many expert services that Regal Research offers. Regal Research is the epitome of what a turn-key manufacturer should be and for that, we thank you.

Sincerely,

Jamey Hurd
